Santa Clara	San Jose	Alum Rock Park	15350 Penitencia Creek Rd	95127								Y	BC	City of San Jose (sjparks.org)	1872 first municipal park in California. "In the late 1800s and through the 1930s, the park was famed throughout the country as a health resort. Through those years and as late as the 1970s, the park featured a natatorium (a huge, heated indoor swimming pool), dozens of private heated mineral baths that visitors could rent, a restaurant, and various other buildings. Many of the springs were enclosed in stonework grottos, and stone bridges were built across the creek. An electric railroad brought people from San Jose into the park.... In the 1970s, the park removed most of the buildings, closed off parts of the park, and began emphasizing the park's natural attractions rather than its man-made ones. Much of the attractive stonework remains, however, as do old support structures for the railroad." [wikipedia.org]

Stanislaus	Patterson	Patterson	Plaza Circle, El Circulo Ave, Las Palmas Ave	95363	Y		Site-C					Y	CB	Patterson Township Historical Society (patterson-ca.com/histsoc)	1910. "Determined to make Patterson different from the towns along the West Side that were also next to the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks, he modeled his town after Washington D.C. and Paris, France, by using a series of circles with radiating streets. T.W. Patterson, although practical, had a eye for beauty. Parks were laid out along the railroad. Major avenues and streets were planted with palms, eucalyptus, and sycamore trees. Some seven miles along Sycamore Avenue were lined with trees of the same name and interspersed with oleander bushes featuring a diversity of colors of which there is little left of the original plantings. Las Palmas Avenue was once lined with eucalyptus trees planted between the palms. Only the palms remain." [Patterson Township Historical Society] Integrity?
